There Is A Legend

At the time of Crucifixion the dogwood had been the size of the oak and other forest trees. So firm and strong was the tree that it was chosen as the timber for the cross. To be used thus for such a cruel purpose greatly distressed the tree, and Jesus nailed upon it, sensed this. In His gentle pity for all sorrow and suffering Jesus: said to the tree " Because of your regret and pity for My suffering, never again shall the dogwood tree grow large enough to be used as a cross. Henceforth it shall be slender and bent and twisted and its blossoms shall be in the form of a cross--two long and two short petals. And in the center of the outer edge of each petal there will be nail prints, brown with rust and stained with red, and in the center of the flower will be a crown of thorns, and all who see it will remember." The pink dogwood is said to be blushing for shame because of the cruel purpose which it served in the Crucifixion. The weeping dogwood further symbolized the sorrow. The red dogwood, called the Cherokee, bears the color to remind us of the blood shed by our Savior.

On Sunday night ADAM HARDING responded asking for the prayers of the church. We commend each of these for their dedication and love for the Lord and a desire to live closer to the Lord. Doing Good

When the apostle Paul closed his letter to the churches in Galatia, he gave a number of exhortations to instruct and encourage these Christians. Listen to chapter 6, verses 9 and 10...

“1. Don’t get discouraged in doing good things. To “lose heart” means to be discouraged and quit. Paul implies that our purpose as followers of Christ is to go about doing good things. The motivation is “in due time we shall reap if we do not grow weary.” That is, if we don’t give up, we’ll ultimately reap eternal life (see v. 8).

2. Do good to all men. We now have opportunity, while living on earth among men, to do some good for others. This means doing good to those who are nice to us and those who aren’t so nice to us. Let’s not get upset at the waitress, the postman, or the bill collector. Let’s consider these opportunities to do some good.

3. Especially do good to Christians. Our brothers deserve our best efforts. Let’s be thoughtful of one another. Instead of finding fault with one another, let’s take the opportunity, while we have it in this life, to do some very good things for one another. Life is short... let’s keep on keeping on for the Lord!
